H2: A Medical Alert System for Parents Who Won't Wear a Device

Not everyone will keep a pendant on, and for someone living with dementia or memory loss, remembering to wear or press a button isn't always realistic. Galaxy's non-wearable medical alert kits solve this with voice-activated help — simply say the trigger phrase from anywhere in range, and help is on the way. It's one of the only medical alert systems in Canada designed specifically for households where a traditional wearable isn't the right fit.

H2: Essential, Essential Plus & Premier Kits

Short framing line above the three tiles:

Choose the kit that matches your home and care needs — each includes voice-activated help extenders, with more coverage and stationary panic buttons as you move up.

(Keep existing product tiles/prices as-is.)

H2: Why Families Choose Galaxy's Voice-Activated Alert System

For adult children supporting a parent with dementia or cognitive decline, a wearable device isn't always practical. Galaxy's non-wearable kits place voice-activated help extenders throughout the home, so your parent is never far from help — without needing to remember a pendant. Every kit includes CSAA Five Diamond monitoring and access to support in 200+ languages.
